

JASON GOUDEAU

Jason Goudeau, trombonist, educator, arranger, and composer, is a native of Houston, Texas. Early on, he acquired a love for music, which led to his attending a local jazz camp known as the Summer Jazz Workshop, where he was exposed to music on a professional level through the tutelage of the camp instructors and developed an appreciation for jazz music. In 1981, Jason attended the High School for the Performing and Visual Arts. He studied jazz under the direction of Dr. Robert Morgan. In 1985, Jason moved to Kansas City, Missouri, and continued his studies at the University Of Missouri at Kansas City Conservatory of Music. He studied trombone under Dr. John Leisenring and jazz under Professor Michael Parkinson, where he earned a Bachelor of Music Performance degree in 1989. In the early 2000s, Jason began working as a music educator and adjudicator in several music programs and regional festivals. The totality of his career as a performer and educator stretches beyond 30 years and has afforded him the opportunity to perform with many local and nationally recognized artists. In 2020, Jason released his first single entitled “Cool of the Day” and is currently working on releasing new music in the coming months.
