Robert Manske

I have known Dr. Rob Manske since the time he was a master's degree student in the then Department of Exercise Science. His record of teaching and research is phenomenal, achieving significant heights of national and international recognition for his work in physical therapy of the shoulder and arm.

Research-wise, he is one of the most productive professors on campus. His is a tribute to the Department of Physical Therapy, the College of Health Professions, and Wichita State University.

It is an honor to call him my friend.
